OVERVIEW

The Lourdes Benería Award, established in Academic Year 2018-19, supports the Latin American Studies Program in the Mario Einaudi Center for International Studies at Cornell University to provide $1500 summer research grants to two graduate students. Their research is to significantly addresses and/or inform the two areas of Lourdes Benería’s life-long academic interests: gender and/or city and regional planning in Latin America. This application is for the year Summer 2020.

The award is for graduate students—including both Ph.D. and professional Masters degree students—across the humanities, social sciences, international development, as well as architecture and planning. It primarily for students in the early years of their graduate programs (i.e., pre-A-exam for doctoral students). Researchers can examine historical, contemporary, or future conditions.

The funds may be used for expenses related to fieldwork at one or more sites in Latin America or the Caribbean. It is expected that applicants will have applied for additional travel support (eg. airfare) from the Einaudi Center or other sources.
LOURDES BENÉRIA RESEARCH AWARD APPLICATION

The Latin American Studies Program (LASP) awards a small number of Lourdes Benéria Awards for summer field research in Latin America or the Caribbean. These grants are for travel and field expenses directly related to dissertation or project paper research, not conference travel. Recipients must be enrolled (full-time or In Absentia) in a graduate (MA/MS, MFA, MPH, MRP, MPS, DMS, JSD or PhD) degree program and be registered at the time of the award.

RESEARCH PROPOSAL

Which of the following award criteria will your research include:

__ Gender
__ City and regional planning

Attach a one-page description of the research project that clearly states your research topic and explains how it addresses questions of gender and/or planning in Latin America. Also explain why this research needs to be undertaken at the proposed location at the proposed time. These are competitive grants; applications should make a clear link between the proposed field research and the student’s degree objectives. Applications which fail to present a compelling justification for the proposed project will be at a significant disadvantage. Awards are to fund trips of at least one month in duration. Applications that are essentially full semester funding requests will not be considered. Requests from prior recipients will be given lower priority.

BUDGET STATEMENT

Attach an itemized budget, showing expenditures for food, lodging, transportation, data acquisition, and any other categories for each segment of your itinerary. Please note that the Lourdes Benería Award seeks to award a maximum number of grants from limited funds. For this reason, students are encouraged to submit requests that reflect careful budgeting. For example, applicants should use public transportation, plan on preparing their own meals whenever possible, and secure modest accommodations. Research travel grants are not intended to act as full fellowships.
